There being no pawnshop in town, the agent concluded that his instructions were to soak the box in water, and he did so. Hundreds of persons visited the express office and viewed with awe the soaking box. The special agent arrived to-day.

POLICE KNEW, BUT LET BLACK HAND USE BOMB

Blackmailers Wrecked Store After Capt. Murtha Was Told of Plot.

ONLY A WAITER THERE.

Saw Italian Place Explosive in Stanton Street House and Run Away.

In spite of the fact that Detective-Sergeant Petrosino warned Capt. Murtha of the Black Hand blackmailers, who probably tried to wreck the grocery store of Giambalvo Brothers at No. 15 Stanton street with dynamite early to-day, and urged him to do everything in his power to apprehend the agent of the Black Hand selected for the task, the blackmailers succeeded in placing a bomb under the front window of the store and blowing out the entire front without being caught.

The man who committed the crime was seen just before the explosion by John O'Hara, a waiter in Lyons's restaurant, who was on his way home. He is a young Italian, and disappeared in the tenement at No. 16 Stanton street, on the ground floor of which was the butcher shop of Vito Laduca, who was one of those accused of the murder of Madonia, the counterfeiter, victim of the "Barrel Mystery."

There are three of the Giambalvo brothers and two sisters, and they are quiet, respectable people. Some months ago they joined their savings and bought the grocery store at No. 15 Stanton street for $400. Since then they have done a good business, and in the neighborhood had the reputation of prospering a great deal more than they actually were.

It didn't take the blackmailers long to spot them and some weeks ago they got a letter demanding $1,000. The police were called in, but the blackmailers refused to pay the money, and the writer of the letter said that he and his friends would not tolerate delay and would act promptly if the police were called in.

In some way, that he does not explain, Petrosino learned that in all likelihood an attempt would be made to dynamite the store early this morning. As he had half a dozen other cases of the same kind on hand, all of which had reached the critical point, he sent a note to Capt. Murtha telling him of the situation and asking that the store be carefully watched.

At 10:30 o'clock when the explosion occurred, Petrosino was on duty. He was charged with the duty of watching the store, and he was in full uniform, and he had just heard of the explosion and had just heard of the explosion and had just heard of the explosion.

SAVED LIFE BY HIS QUICK WIT IN THE SUBWAY

BY FRANK W. THORP.

JAMAICA RACE TRACK, Oct. 17.—Just after the fourth race, this afternoon, the Pinkertons arrested two young men who were making signals to another man outside the course. The outside man was not located, but is supposed to have been at the end of a telephone flashing results to New York or some other city in an effort to beat the pool-rooms.

This game is believed to be possible since the Western Union has discontinued the pool-room service. A direct telephone wire to a point in the vicinity of a pool-room may beat the roundabout telegraph service and enable the recipient of the advance information to get a bet down before the news of the race reaches the room through the regular channels.

It was reported a short time ago that three smooth individuals cleaned up $2,500 by the telephone system last summer from one pool-room at a Jersey seacoast resort, losing the whole punch on one race at Belmont Park. Maybe the two arrested this afternoon constituted the majority of the trio trying to make room.

Oak Duke Led All the Way.

Oak Duke went to the front at the start of the opening dash, made all the running, and won easily by eight lengths from Shy Ben, who beat James Redick four lengths for the place. Water Mirror and Consistent, raced second and third to the stretch, where both died away.

40 to 1 Shot Just Nailed.

Norbury, a 40 to 1 shot, made the running, followed by Grenade, Memories and Jean. They held this order to the far turn, where Memories tired and was displaced by Mabel Richardson. In the home stretch Grenade closed strong and nailed Norbury in the last jump. Mabel Richardson was third, three lengths away.

Ananias and Palette "showed the way to the back stretch, where Ormondes Right went to the front and just breeched all the way, winning by a length from Louis H., who took best place on the far turn and beat Palette a head for the place. Ananias stopped to a walk and pulled up lame.

Belle Strome Won Easily.

Caraphine cut out the running to the stretch, followed by Belle Strome and Keator. They held this order to the front and Belle Strome went to the front and won easily by two lengths from Keator, who just got up in time to beat Caraphine a head.

CAST HER BABY INTO RIVER AND LAY ON TRACK

Mother Drowns Her Child and Seeks Death Under Express Train Wheels.

SAVED BY ENGINEER.

Locomotive Stopped Within Few Feet of Where Mrs. Cable Was on Rail.

COLLINSVILLE, Conn., Oct. 17.—While under mental distress to-day, Mrs. Henry Cable wandered from her home to the bank of the Farmington River and threw her six-months-old child into the water. The body was later recovered by a farmer.

Mrs. Cable then went to the railroad and waited for the noon express over the Central New England road. As it approached she walked upon the tracks and lay down. The engineer, seeing she did not notice the whistle, brought his train to a stop a few feet from Mrs. Cable.

She was turned over to a physician, by whom she is being guarded until the arrival of the coroner. Mrs. Cable was notified of the finding of the infant's body in the river.

Mrs. Cable had been in a sanitarium for mental treatment and returned to her home last week.

THIRD DEGREE KILLS MAN, HIS SISTER SAYS

Over McGowan's Coffin Women Charges Police with Causing His Death.

Over the coffin of William McGowan, who was buried to-day from No. 122 Jay street, Brooklyn, the dead man's sister, Mrs. Maud McGowan, openly charged the police of the Fulton Street station with causing the young man's death by administering the "third degree" on the night of Oct. 5 while attempting to make him confess a burglary.

McGowan, who was twenty-nine years old, was arrested Oct. 5 charged with knowledge of the theft of goods from the Mac Levy gymnastium, No. 9 Fulton street. He was sent to jail the next day by Magistrate Dooley in default of bail, and was there seized with uremic convulsions, dying in the Cumberland Street Hospital Sunday.

The doctors attributed the primary cause of his death to alcoholic inflammation of the kidneys, but when informed that Doyle brought the body to the morgue, Mrs. McGowan said that the man's legs were found to be black and blue, and his face an neck were discolored with knuckle marks. She also ran.

Mrs. McGowan says McGowan, before dying, told her that the police gave him the "third degree."

M'CURDY NEVER HEARD OF MEN ON HIS PAY-ROLL

Big Sums Paid Out by Legislative Agent Fields for Services, but Mutual's President Didn't Know What For—Defiant, He Refuses to Answer.

Richard A. McCurdy, President of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, declined to-day to answer many questions put to him by Chief Inquisitor Hughes, of the Legislative Insurance Committee, and asked if he was under a Spanish Inquisition rack.

There was no help for him. He had to confess time and again that he didn't know the essential details of the Mutual Life's business, and tried to turn the inquisition to the actuary of the company.

Other questions asked of Mr. McCurdy showed that Mr. Andrew C. Fields has been for years a legislative agent of the company as well as head of the bureau of supplies.

That Fields has paid large sums of money for "professional services" and "legal services" to George Plunkitt, Charles R. McClelland, former State Senator and now United States Appraiser at this port; James R. Craig, Louis F. Murray, M. E. Mulaney, James O. Larlim, John E. Ash and others.

That J. Howard, Jr., a newspaper writer, is on the personal staff of President McCurdy, receiving on an average of $2,500 a year for professional services.

Mr. McCurdy did not know for what the money was paid, except to Howard, and, in fact, didn't even know who the men paid were.

A defiant old man, wary as a cornered cat, was Richard A. McCurdy, when he took the witness stand. What came from his lips was fairly dragged out. He accused Chief Counsel Hughes of unfairness. He told a committee practically that it didn't know how to conduct its inquiry.

Never was the ignorance of any man of subjects which should be at his fingers' ends so pitifully shown as when McCurdy was asked to answer the charges of policy-holders that the Mutual Life did not pay them the share of profits on savings to which they are entitled.

McCurdy said that Andrew Fields, the Mutual's legislative "pookah," was on the Jersey coast.

An affidavit was produced by the company's counsel that Fields was in Southern California.

It was a day of contradiction and forced admissions.

McCurdy said that he hadn't raised his salary to $450,000, and that he didn't propose to reduce it.

Not a suggestion of an explanation could the old witness get of what all the money Fields had paid out went for.

A voucher for May 19, 1901, for $2,500.33 paid to Andrew Hamilton, legislative worker for the New York Life by the Mutual was shown to McCurdy. He didn't know what it was for.

Another voucher for $2,500 to Andrew Hamilton in March of the same year was produced. He didn't know anything about it.

On April 23, 1902, Hamilton got $13,333 from the Mutual "for adjustment of the New York Life's expenses." McCurdy knew nothing about this, but he
